Edward R. White

Returning Home: A Life’s Retrospective

Those who live in Portland know Edward Renard “Nardie” White. His and his family’s roots run deep in the community, himself a third-generation resident. He spent his early adulthood working with the Portland Boys and Girls Club, a staple space among the memories of Portland’s fellow long-timers. Gordon Brown - who served as Director of the Boys and Girls Club during White’s tenure before moving on to being President / CEO of Home of the Innocents for 21 years – has this to say about the White family legacy:

“The Whites were an anchor family for the Black Community on Lytle street in Portland. They were leaders in bridging the racial gap in the neighborhood which was very tough to penetrate in those days. The Whites were distinguished, had high aspirations for their children and were cherished friends of both black and white residents. Nardie is a product of this great family.”

From there, White would discover a passion for working with children, leading to his co-founding of Louisville’s River City Drum Corp, a vital after-school organization that for over 30 years now has utilized Pan-African rhythm culture to mentor West End youth.

Ed White officially retired from the Corp in 2019, as chronicled in the acclaimed 2020 documentary River City Drumbeat, leaving it in the capable hands of a mentee. In most other accounts, this would have been the beginning and end of a rich life’s story. However, White has been quietly fostering his interests in being a multimedia artist since childhood. Having graduated from Jefferson Community College with an associate degree in commercial photography, he has both examined his locality and traveled the world with camera in tow. For years he utilized these skills as a professional photographer, and for more years as an outlet of personal expression. Since his retirement, White has also begun to explore ceramics and large-scale multimedia sculpture, exhibited last year at Louisville’s Shawnee Public Library. Even more recently White has earned the titles of 2022 Community Scholar from the Filson Historical Society, and Oral Historian from the Kentucky Arts Council, with a focus on preserving the stories of his hometown congregation of the Portland Memorial Baptist Church. But not even these additions fully recount the ever-evolving story of Ed “Nardie” White.

On February 20th, 2022, Portland Museum will be officially opening Edward R. White, Returning Home: A Life’s Retrospective, a sweeping exhibition featuring over one-hundred pieces made by White over the last thirty years of his life. Now in his seventh decade on earth, White has designed and curated this show as a personal reemergence into his community. Having been an artist privately for most of his life, White is now ready to be recognized as one.

White’s photography is focused on the medium’s ability to capture essence,

"Getting Ready"

Hello Portland, little Carmie and Grampa here. Let me start off by asking you a question. Have you ever seen the Valentine day man? I always get something from him, but I've never seen him. Never know when he's coming, just hear a knock on the door or a tap on the window and find a present! But any ways, we're getting the ATV ready to go find shed deer antlers. Then after that it's time for fishing! See ya on the water or in the field.

Spring is in the air finally!

By Christina Beaven

I absolutely love the Spring and all the joy that comes with everything being “new” again! Use this opportunity to do some easy, safeguards for your family as the season changes!

Trim any weeds or bushes away from your property. Change the batteries in your smoke detector. If you don't have one, stop by your local fire house. They usually have them to give. Make sure all your outdoor lighting is working. This can be one of the biggest deterrents of crime. Do you know what else is a big deterrent of crime? The amazing men and women of the 1st Division!

All crime across the board is down significantly! Violent crime is down over 30% as well as property crime, it's down 16%. That is amazing and it has to do with the support the 1st Division gets from the community. There is no other community in the City of Louisville that compares to the love poured out to the police from its citizens. Of course, I am a little biased (smiley face) but I do believe this. When you support our police and let them know you stand behind them, it gives them a reason to get out there and keep you and your family safe! Thank an officer today!

and his exhibit reflects this mastery. Familial love, the personalities of Portland locals, the character of cities abroad, and the unprecedented energy of Louisville's 2020 racial justice protests are all represented on the museum's walls. To be debuted is a sculpture entitled Portland Now, employing White's Pan African-inspired multimedia style at monumental scale. Featured as well will be ceramic works and other mementos of White's long life and wealth of careers. Having been a board member of the Portland Museum for two years now, White is proud to be bringing his

The Kerfuffle On Northwestern Parkway

For well over two years the Portland Neighborhood has been struggling to get the entrance and exit to and from N. 22nd St at Northwestern Pkwy cleaned up, repaired to the standards prescribed by the US Department of Transportation. I have a letter I sent to Matt Bevin when he was in office asking for help with this area. That too fell on deaf ears - he may have been busy signing pardons.

This past week I got like Howard Beale in Network. I didn't scream, "I'm mad as Hell and I'm not going to take this anymore." But driving under the over pass on Northwestern Pkwy I certainly related to what that movie character was on about. For years Portland has been relegated to at best second class in the way we are treated by government.

We are not going to be treated like this anymore. We are going to have the same access and work from the Commonwealth of Kentucky & Louisville Metro Government as Crescent Hill, Indian Hills, Cherokee Triangle or Norton Commons. To that end I announced I was having a press conference on Northwestern Parkway, North side of the street, West of N. 22nd St. At that press conference I passed out these comments to the press BEFORE I spoke them.

REMARKS BY RICHARD MEADOWS, PORTLAND RESIDENT FEBRUARY 16, 2022.

Good afternoon

Thanks for coming out today. My name is Richard Meadows. I am a resident and property owner here in the Portland neighborhood.

I asked you all to come up here today to talk about the lack of service of any kind from the Commonwealth of Kentucky through the Kentucky Department of Transportation District 5 (KYDOT5). (This is the Kentucky Transportation District and has NOTHING to do with Louisville Metro Council District #5).

Over the past two years on any number of occasions residents of this neighborhood have reached out to the Commonwealth about the condition of the area around the exit ramp from I-64 East and West into the Portland neighborhood. For those people traveling east-bound on I-64, this exit is the first exit in the Commonwealth of Kentucky. It seems to me and others in this neighborhood that the Commonwealth would at the very least want the appearance of the area around the exit to look clean. If you look around you will see that is obviously not true. THEY DON'T CARE.

The immediate area where we are right now and down to my right has a complete lack of cleanup or any attention from KYDOT5. And after my comments and your questions we can take a brief tour, so those of you in the press with the video cameras can take photos and videos to show the absolute lack of work that is done by KYDOT5.

As we move west from here on Northwestern Parkway you will see several areas where the fence is cut and disconnected from the posts allowing foot traffic directly onto I-64 East. Additionally you will find damaged areas where it looks like a car hit the fence and it's not been repaired. Behind you over there on the 22nd St. side of the fence for that overpass area there's a place cut in the fence located behind some bushes to allow access that can't be seen from the street.

Across 22nd St. on the Eastern overpass area again there is a dumpster full of trash that has been accumulating there for months and months. Several residents in the neighborhood have called KYDOT5, used metro 311, sent emails and made posts to the Facebook page for KYDOT5, all to no avail.

Across 22nd St. on the Eastern overpass area again there is a dumpster full of trash that has been accumulating there for months and months. Several residents in the neighborhood have called KYDOT5, used metro 311, sent emails and made posts to the Facebook page for KYDOT5, all to no avail.

After all these months of being ignored I took it upon myself last week to send a letter to the governor, Andy Beshear, and to the Kentucky Department of Transportation District 5 Chief Engineer Matt Bullock detailing the problems of this area. I want to make sure that they understand that the Portland neighborhood is not going to tolerate being disrespected like this any longer. I believe that we are ignored in this neighborhood because we are West of Ninth St and north of Main St. It is nothing short of 'governmental redlining'.

In the years that I have lived in Portland and been associated with the Portland neighborhood I have seen the state build decorative walls along I-264, I-64, and I-71 in the Eastern part Metro Louisville. These walls assist in soundproofing the neighborhoods near the interstate. Just like my letter to the governor and the chief engineer, when we make inquiries about being considered for having those walls put up along I-64 near the Portland neighborhood, the only thing we get is the sound of crickets. Again the state is redlining this neighborhood because we are west of Ninth St and North of Main St.

Having you all here today at this press conference is Portland's bully pulpit. You on the other hand have the big stick. You can ask the governor and the chief engineer for KYDOT5 why this situation exists; why they don't clean it up; why are we so special that they won't do their job here in the Portland neighborhood? Is it in fact because the Commonwealth is redlining Portland?

Thank you. Now if you have questions I will try to answer them.

END OF REMARKS TO THE PRESS.

The very first question that was asked was about the homeless and that KYDOT5 allegedly has an agreement with Louisville Metro to clean this area up and the Office of Resiliency is responsible.

The residents of Portland all know that the issue in this area has nothing to do with the homeless. What seems hard to get almost anyone else to understand is the problem at this location is NOT A PROBLEM WITH OR FROM A HOMELESS CAMP. Put that away. Doesn't play any part. The specific area I was in front of and talking about has 3 years or more growth of vines on the broken down chainlink prison fencing. The homeless did not cultivate those vines.

The five ton dump truck load of litter, trash, dumped property, rusted out metal bins, and all other kind of detritus was not put there by some homeless person or people camping on a 40° incline of concrete. It is years of waste that KYDOT5 and Louisville Metro have allowed to accumulate. Could some of it come from homeless people discarding junk, probably, but much less so than the professional dumpers that visit their waste on Portland.

Let me make it clear to everyone - this has NOTHING to do with Louisville Metro Council District #5. I was here when Sharon Wilbert was our Alderman. For all you young folk, the city used to have just 12 Alderman. Sharon got things done for Portland. Until we got our current Council member Donna Purvis, Portland was really relegated to the bottom of the pile. Ms Purvis has worked diligently to get things done in and for Portland.

I am not done by any means on this issue. I heard and read that the city is going to give rakes and shovels and put out trash cans to get this area cleaned up. Apparently, the homeless people are going to do the work. Your tax dollars at work right there. Free labor in exchange for getting a shovel or rake.

So I call a press conference. I address the reporters on camera. I give my name. I am on Facebook. I got Louisville Metro so shook up on the day after my press conference they had 8-10 vehicles and people from all kinds of departments on Northwestern Parkway on the opposite side of the street mind you.

No one has reached out to me. It feels like they know better how to handle this than any resident of Portland does. Or at the very least they do not want your ideas, counsel or decades of experience. Once again Portland is being told that Louisville Metro knows better how to fix this.

This is not over. We are not going to accept a bandaid when we need surgery. What most folks don't know is your can fire your doctor or your lawyer and get another professional to help you, that will listen. Sometimes that means you need to have things worked out with professional help at 601 W Broadway, Louisville, KY 40202.

March is Colorectal Cancer Awareness Month!

Submitted by: Kristin Munro-Leighton, Family Health Centers

Colorectal cancer is the 3rd most common type of cancer for men and women. When found early, colorectal cancer can usually be cured.

If it can be cured, why is colorectal cancer the 2nd highest cause of cancer deaths in the U.S.? Because there are no early warning signs! The only way to catch it early is to get a colonoscopy to have your colon and rectum checked. Many people put off getting a colonoscopy because they've heard it is unpleasant. Here's what Family Health Centers patients said:

- "I can't say it is not unpleasant, because it is. But it is well worth your peace of mind!" --Mike
- "It's just one day and it could save your life." --Brenda
- "It's a very thorough exam and you won't feel a thing." --Mary

How does colorectal cancer start?

Your colon and rectum are sections of your large intestine. Colorectal cancers often begin as polyps in the colon or rectum. Polyps are fleshy, mushroom-shaped growths. Most polyps are harmless, but some will turn into cancerous tumors. Removing polyps early can prevent colorectal cancer.

Why should I be screened for colorectal cancer?

Signs of colorectal cancer only show up after cancer has developed, when treatment can be difficult. It is best to be checked for colorectal cancer regularly so that polyps can be found early and removed before they become cancerous. Many colorectal cancer deaths could have been prevented through regular screening.

What are the screening methods and recommendations?

- Fecal occult blood test – your doctor will give you a kit to collect a stool sample at home, then you will bring the sample back to your doctor. The lab can test your stool sample for blood in amounts that are too small for you to see, which allows any problems to be caught early.
- Colonoscopy – a camera is inserted to do a complete examination of your colon and rectum. This is the “gold standard” for colorectal cancer screening because it allows for earlier detection of polyps. Also, polyps can be removed during the procedure, which actually prevents cancer from developing. You will be put to sleep for the entire procedure.

Recommendations: Most men and women should be screened starting at age 50. You need a fecal occult blood test every year OR a colonoscopy every 10 years. You will be screened earlier and/or more often if you have a family history of the disease or other risk factors. Talk to your health provider today!

LVA Summer Camps Now Registering, Including Two in Portland

By Grant Johnson

LVA is excited to offer unique and exciting Spring and Summer Art Camps in 2022. Info and registration are available at: <https://www.louisvillevisualart.org/camps-workshops>.

The Spring Break Camp - Rock, Paper, Scissors – runs at the Holy Trinity Clifton campus April 4 - 8. Mornings are for artistic creativity and discovery; afternoons are for exploration, games, and fun outside. Kids from all parts of Louisville are encouraged to sign up.

Summer Camps offer additional locations, with some sites able to accommodate extended hours. As with Spring Break Camp, Summer Art Camps focus on art-making in the morning, with energetic activities in the afternoon. Camps occur at Holy Trinity Clifton Campus, Waterfront Park, Waterfront Botanical Gardens, and at LVA's Lytle Street facility in Portland. The Portland based camps include the Manga Academy Summer Workshop for ages 11-13 (August 1-5), and the Studio Art Academy Summer Workshop for ages 13-17 (July 25-29).

Many students have followed a first experience of LVA's exceptional art education curriculum in an Art Camp with continued success in our school-year programs, Children's Fine Art Classes (grades 4-8), and the Academy of LVA (grades 9-12). Camps are a great way for students with interest in visual art to gain knowledge and confidence that may even lead to a career as an artist.

Summer Camps all meet for one week,

Monday through Friday. Most follow a 9am-4pm schedule, but it is important to check the link above for specifics. The Camp season runs June 6 through August 5, 2021, and available spots are already filling up. Please reach out to LVA Education Director, Annette Cable, with inquiries: annette@louisvillevisualart.org.
